Indu Garga

OCT 12, 1947 - FEB 12, 2013

Indu Garga was born on October 12, 1947 in New Delhi, the first and most cherished daughter of Chandra Prakash and Sudharshan Gupta. The eldest of seven siblings, Indu was always known for her kindness and love. But, her sisters will also say she was always known as 'the pretty one.' Indu was also known for giggling at all hours with her mother, sisters and brothers about childhood fun. Family is the ultimate core of Indu. Her elders, parents, brothers, sisters, husband, daughters, nieces, nephews, grandchildren, extended family and close family friends meant the world to her. Indu first spied her soul mate, Shree Garga, at a family wedding. She always told her daughters she picked him because he was so handsome, and not just because, as Shree would joke later, he was moving to America. Indu and Shree were truly devoted to each other, and their relationship serves as the ultimate inspiration to their daughters and all of their friends. Indu was blessed with two beautiful girls: Neyha and Nina, two amazing sons-in-law: Sudhir and Anish, and four even more amazing grandchildren: Krish, Isha, Kavi and Laila. Indu was the most perfect mother, and inspired her daughters to be great mothers too. In addition to her family devotion, Indu completed an MBA from San Jose State University, and after early retirement from private sector work became a tireless activist and volunteer for numerous nonprofit agencies. Indu always had a natural affinity with elders. She regularly visited homebound seniors, served on senior committees at the India Community Center, and forged lasting friendships wherever she went. Indu was ultimately devoted to the National MS Society, serving as a peer counselor, support group leader and trainer, raising thousands of dollars towards research and support services, earning public praise, recognition and awards each step of the way. She was especially proud of her role as the fearless leader of Indu's Troop, her MS Walk team, which continues to raise awareness and money for multiple sclerosis research every year. Everyone who crossed Indu's path was touched by her strength, energy, and

Dears Neha & Neena It is almost a week since I got the news that Indu Didi has left us, but the fact has not yet sunk in. I distinctly recall the kind and comforting words she said to console me on my mother's death, hardly two months ago. Her calm and composed voice during nearly half an hour long conversation that we had at no point betrayed the suffering she was going through and little did I realize that her end was so near. Beta, I know, no matter how hard I try and whatever I may say, I cannot help you get over the pain and suffering that the two of you must be going through right now. All that I can say is that your mother has always been a great fighter and it is this fighting spirit of hers which alone will help you to cope with the deep sense of loss that we all experience when we part with our loved ones. Love, Asha Masi

Dear indu, I saw the living expression of love and kindness on your face, in your eyes and the smile. In spite of the health issue you depicted a positive attitude. I remember talking to you on last Tuesday on our forum discussion subject. I understand you have been very involved with ICC doing a lot of volunteering work. We will miss you Induji. Peace to your soul, RajParimoo

Dear Indu, You have always been a source of inspiration for me. No matter what the challenges were, you took them head on. You welcomed us when we moved to Fremont, cooking for us and taking care of little things. I could always walk to your house for a friendly chat, enjoy a cup of tea and reminisce the good old days. Your warmth, your smile, your caring ways will be greatly missed. You will stay in my heart forever. – Neelu RIP We love you.
