I've heard that the song 'The River Has Run Wild' by Mads Langer isn't out yet. It's rumored to be released soon though.

If you're talking strictly about weight gain, and no other health issues with regard to fat or no fat, the calories are what the calories are. However, I've seen articles in the past that claimed that your body uses more calories to process the carb calories than it does to process the fat calories. In other words if you eat an equal amount of carbs than fat in one meal for example, a bigger part of the fat calories will be stored as fat than do the carb calories.

Phil was one of the kindest and hardest working men that I have ever known. He was constantly on the move, but never too busy that he didn't want to stop and chat about your day and his. He was loved by all and will sorely be missed.
