Although he did not live to an old age, he have been able to enjoy more joy and love than many elderly people. Even though I was never close to him, I know that he is a very good man. He is very fortunate to have a home, a beautiful wife, a beautiful, loving daughter, and an energetic son. Many men are fortunate to have wives and children, but it was more than just having. He loved his family very dearly, so he continued fighting death, so that he may have as much time as he could with his family and to prevent them from saddening. I admire him, because of his perseverance and how much he loves his daughter. He and his daughter had a close, loving relationship, that is lacking in, I believe, most father-daughter relationships. I respect him. He was an honorable man.##imported-begin##Wendy##imported-end##
