Thinking of you, dearest friend forever. Seems that we are also approaching the last dance in life. My husband of fifty years is now 82 and I am 77. Where has the time gone? Memories are a gift. Thank you from my heart and soul, forever, loving rest. Shawn Casucci

Happy Birthday, dear Craig. I just wanted to connect with you in some way. A while ago, I had a sweet dream about you and I wanted to try and connect with you. I wanted to thank you for your presence in my life as a young college student. Yes, we followed our different paths, but I have always been grateful that you were in my life for a few short years. Thank you for your loving, patient and tenderness during our relationship. My husband and I just celebrated our 49th wedding Anniversary, time flies. Old age and the pandemic has given us lots of time for pondering...fondly thinking of you, dear Stranger on the Shore. I see you in the scarlet ribbons in my hair and pray for your journey.
